

Editorial Note for Clinical Practice

ClinicalPractice

I am happy to introduce the Journal “Clinical Practice,” which is keen on publishing the latest innovations and developments in a peer-reviewed scientific Journal. It is well known for the rapid processing of high-quality research. This clinical Journal provides open access platform to its readers and authors. This Journal holds good standings with a good impact factor. The international scientific community is benefitted from the publication of standard clinical researches. It focuses on the most authentic and reliable information of the most advanced areas of medical sciences. The Journal covers a vast pool of various clinical branches; medicine, pathology, clinical skills, surgery, obstetrics and Gynaecology, Paediatrics, Neonatology, Geriatrics, Community Medicine, Ophthalmology, Emergency Medicine, etc. This Journal’s idea is progressive and has a proactive team to work together for improved quality and faster processing of the articles.

publishes all kinds of researches like Case reports, short essays, original articles, review articles, short communications, case series, in all areas related to clinical practice. The Journal provides free online access worldwide. Published articles are indexed under Scopus*, EMBASE/ Excerpta Medica, Google Scholar, Publons, CNKI, Open J-Gate.

The impact factor for the Journal is 2.4*.

The Journal aspires to be accessible, integrated, vibrant, and challenging. It receives manuscripts around the world with peer reviewing from different countries. The Journal holds a competent and hard-working team of reviewers. The average publication time of an article is 2-4 weeks. The constant support of our board members, readers, and peer reviewers will take this Journal to new heights.

The Journal has an online review and editorial tracking system and supports online submission through its portal. The manuscripts can also be sent through email directly to clinpractice@scholarres.org.

I take this opportunity to appreciate its Editors’ contribution to the fine editing of the published articles. I express my gratitude to all the reviewers, reviewers, editorial board, authors, advisory committee, and office bearers for their un-tiring continuous support for the Journal for its paperless publications. This Journal would like to contribute substantially towards enhancing knowledge and skills and boosting increased awareness for community health. It will be an essential tool for its readers to improve and implement healthcare policies. I wish good luck to the journal and extend my support for it.

Nazim Nasir Ahmad*

Head of Basic Medical Sciences, King Khalid University, Abha, Aseer, KSA.

*Author for correspondence:
nnasir@kku.edu.sa